She was shown to doctor and medicines were given but were stopped due to financial crisis.

She was given medicine support by which some changes have been seen. Now she is very familiar with her family members and listens to them what they say. Now-a-days she does not shout at others or grumble without any reason. Her fearness of killing her has also reduced. She greets guests coming to their house by saying them Namaskar. Now-a-days people accept her and involve her in their family functions and ceremonies. She also helps her mother to some extent in her household work like cooking and taking care of children's at home. She takes the children for outing also. Now she is very friendly with everyone. She gets grocery from the shop for their family. She is very cooperative and helps everyone in need. Now-a-days she is thinking of doing something to earn and lead an independent life. She does all the work allotted to her without any hesitation. Her parents are very happy to see the changes and she herself feels that she is independent in doing many things and she does not have to depend on others and they thank the donors who are supporting for the said cause. They are also supporting her in her decision and are thinking of engaging her in some work. As per doctor she should continue taking the medicines for long otherwise her condition will deteriorate for which medicines are continuing regularly
